A MEDLEY OF NOTABLES: What they said and What others said of them. By G. F. S.

This little book contains on one side of each page a quotation from some well-known author, and on the other side a brief notice of this author by other authors. If we turn to Shakespeare, for instance, we find quoted Dame Quickly's description of Falstaff's death, while there are given notices of Shakespeare by Keats, Ben Jonson, Browning, Barnfield, and by some anonymous writer who likely enough is the editor. From him we learn that "Shakespeare went before all men, and stands in the array of human intellect like the sun in the system, single and unappropriated."—Saturday Review.

Published at 21 Castle-street, Holborn.

STUDIES IN PHYSICAL SCIENCE. The Sun; Transit of Venus; Spectrum Analysis; the Moon; the Stars and Planets; Comets and Meteors; Atmospheric Electricity; Whirlwinds; Glaciers; the Telephone. By W. J. MILLAR, C.E., Secretary to the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders in Scotland; Author of "Principles of Mechanics," &c.

This work consists of chapters from several sciences, astronomy, electricity, heat, light, &c. They cover a good deal of ground, and include subjects as wide apart as whirlwinds and spectrum analysis, glaciers and the telephone.—Liverpool Albion. Published at 21, Castle-street, Holborn.

"NO SURRENDER." By ERNST WERNER, Author of "Under a Charm," "Success, and how he won it," &c. 3 vols., crown 8vo.
 "No Surrender" deserves the very warmest commendation, and it is so thoroughly well written that the reader who puts it down may be perfectly satisfied with it, and yet not know how clever it is; but if it be compared with the numberless other attempts at novel writing the difference becomes clear enough."—Vanity Fair.

SENSE AND SENSIBILITY.
 "I have now read over again all Miss Austen's novels. Charming they are. There are in the world no compositions which approach nearer to perfection."—Macaulay's Journal.

II.
PRIDE AND PREJUDICE.
 "The perfect type of a novel of common life; the story is so concisely and dramatically told, the language so simple, the shades of human character so clearly presented, and the operation of various motives so delicately traced, attest this gifted woman to have been the perfect mistress of her art."—Arnold's English Literature.
 "One of the best of Miss Austen's unequalled works. How perfectly it is written!"—Spectator.

III.
EMMA.
 "Shakespeare has neither equal nor second; but among the writers who have approached nearest to the manner of the great master we have no hesitation in placing Jane Austen, a woman of whom England is justly proud."—Macaulay's Essays.

IV.
MANSFIELD PARK.
 "Miss Austen has a talent for describing the involvements and feelings and characters of ordinary life which is to me the most wonderful I ever met with. Her exquisite touch, which renders commonplace things and character interesting from the truth of the description and sentiment, is denied to me."—SIR WALTER SCOTT.

V.
NORTHANGER ABBEY.
 "Read Dickens' 'Hard Times,' and another book of Piny's 'Letters.' Read 'Northanger Abbey,' worth all Dickens and Piny together. Yet it was the work of a girl, who was certainly not more than 26. Wonderful creature!"—Macaulay's Journal.

PERSUASION.
 "Miss Austen's fame will outlive the generations that did not appreciate her, and her works will be ranked with the English classics as long as the human lasts."—Atlas.

VI.
LADY SUSAN.
 "We do not know a more agreeable writer than Miss Austen. The great charm of her characters is their reality. They are the truest pictures of English middle and country life of her own time."—Literary Gazette.
 "Miss Austen's merits have long been established beyond question; she is emphatically the novelist of home."—Spectator.

THE WATSONS.
 With a Memoir and Portrait of the Authoress.
 "Miss Austen's life, as well as her talent, seems to us unique among the lives of authoresses of fiction."—Quarterly Review.

NATURE:

A WEEKLY ILLUSTRATED JOURNAL OF SCIENCE.

"NATURE" contains ORIGINAL ARTICLES on all subjects coming within the domain of Science, contributed by the most eminent scientists, belonging to all parts of the world.

REVIEWS, setting forth the nature and value of recent scientific works, are written for "NATURE" by men who are acknowledged masters in their particular departments.

The CORRESPONDENCE columns of "NATURE," while forming a medium of scientific discussion and of intercommunication among the most distinguished men of Science, have become the recognised organ for announcing new discoveries and new illustrations of scientific principles among observers of Nature all the world over—from Japan to San Francisco, from New Zealand to Iceland.

The SERIAL columns of "NATURE" contain the gist of the most important Papers that appear in the numerous Scientific Journals which are now published at home and abroad, in various languages; while longer ABSTRACTS are given of the more valuable Papers which appear in foreign Journals.

THE PRINCIPAL SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES and ACADEMIES of the World, British and Foreign, have their transactions regularly recorded in "NATURE," the Editor being in correspondence, for this purpose, with representatives of Societies in all parts of the world.

NOTES from the most trustworthy sources appear each week, recording the latest gossip of the Scientific world at home and abroad.

As questions of Science compass all limits of nationality, and are of universal interest, a periodical devoted to them may fitly appeal to the intelligent classes in all countries where its language is read. The proprietors of "NATURE" aim so to conduct it that it shall have a common claim upon all English-speaking peoples. Its articles are brief and condensed, and are thus suited to the circumstances of an active and busy people who have little time to read extended and elaborate treatises.
